God, how I hate it! It makes me paranoid. It never fails. Somehow I always feel like I'm enlisting in the army or something. Next time they'll strip me and give me a physical. And may God help them the day it comes to that.

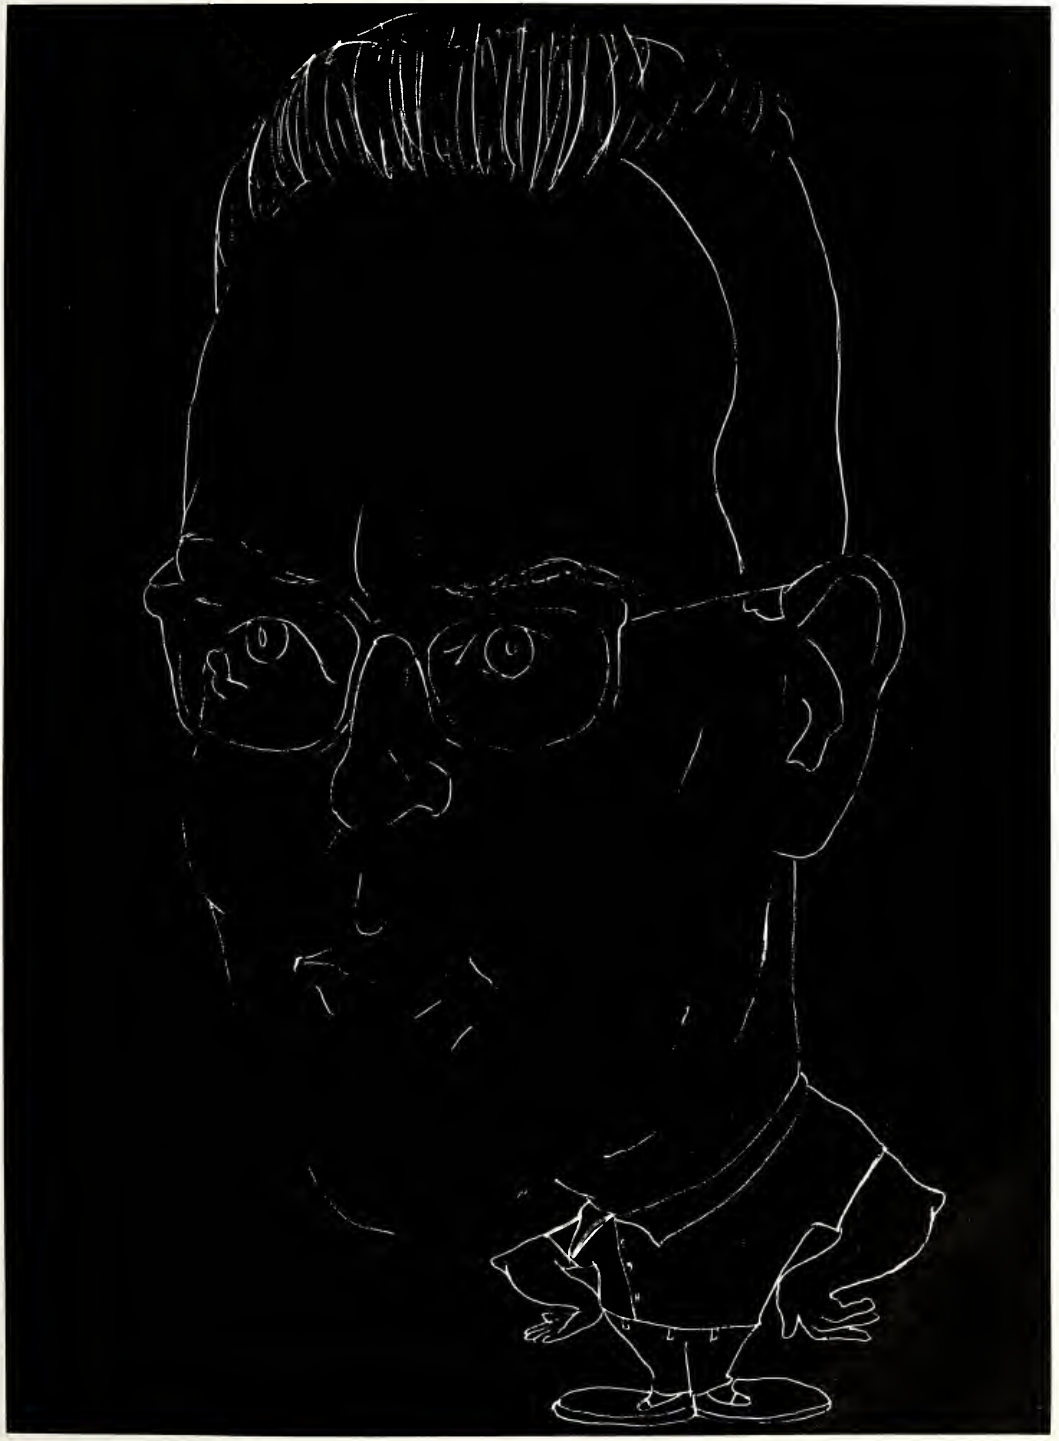
Sept 21 –
The swine flu has surfaced in various parts of the country. It has yet to reach here. If it does reach here we'll have an epidemic on our hands.



Oct. 10 - I have an excused absence from History today. It's raining.

Oct 11 - I sense the arrival of the monsoon season.

Oct 12 - Oh, how I wish I had an umbrella.

Nov. 10 – Dogs, Dogs, Dogs, Dogs. Dogs, Dogs, Dogs, Dogs, Dogs!
Well, they did say there was an increase in the enrollement this year.

Nov. 2 - I hear that the administration has recently adopted plans for the renovation of Ramsey. And then again, maybe it'll buy some swamp land in Florida

KEEP OUT!

Nov. 23 — They're now recieving applications for President (of the University). The deadline for all of the applications is Dec. 10. The drawing will be held in the basement of Napier early next May.

Nov. 10 : Midterm.
God the pain it brings. Each arrival is sure to bring unwarranted doom to pleasant
parent - student relations.
I believe it to be an evil
made for the sole purpose
of assuring that the student gets at least one
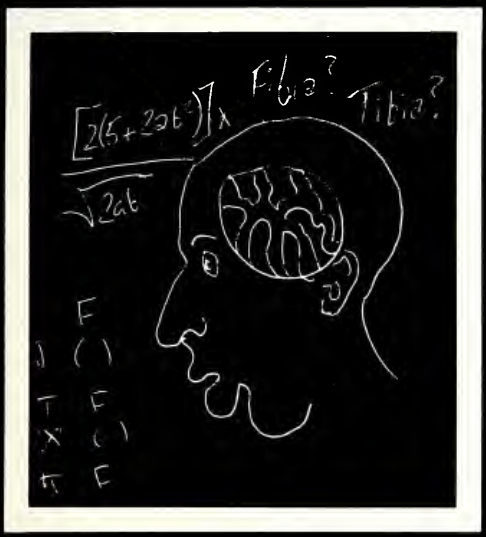
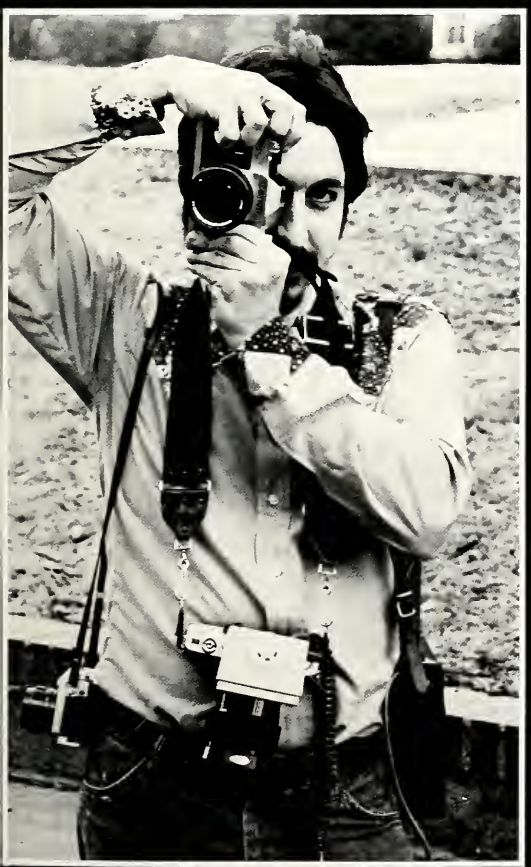
butt - kicking a semester.

Jan. 22 - A minor miracle occured today. I finally got a check cashed at the bank downtown. The only catch was that I had to promise them the custody of my first - born male child.



Fibia?
Tibia?



May 1 - The SGA made a legislature breakthrough in their meeting last night. They finally passed a bill they now say that attendance of classes is not mandatory

Feb. 8 - I've long since quit going to my Grammar class. There's no challenge anymore. I'm flunking.

A late game rally produced a 75-68 win and five more tremendous wins were to follow. During this stretch the most satisfying victory of the season came when the Falcons defeated A.U.M. by a margin of 78-68, thus throwing the league title into a co-championship. The Falcons' strong finish carried them to a 16-12 overall record, a fourteenth in the nation defensive ranking.

Many people are responsible for getting this book out, due to their hard work and devotion. Thanks go of course to the Montage Staff for doing the job asked of them. However, some people deserve special thanks for (it's been a long day) coming in at the last minute and helping with drawing layouts, cropping pictures, and doing the bull that had to be done.

After an all night drive to the publishers my mind finds it hard to remember everyone who helped. Here's a try:

Susan Shaner, Sue Harris, Mike Dillard, Doug Davis, Bert Bagley and Mike Barnes — for last minute help.
Rev. Bob Ford — for his typewriter (however unwilling he was to let us borrow it).
Bosley, the cat eating dog — for inspiration
Mr. Roy Lechtreck — for his autograph.
Dr. Norman McMillan and Dr. Bill Hamer — for encouragement, perseverance, and immoral support.
Pep Pipkin for his understanding
Dr. Shirley Jackson and Mrs. Rotenberry for their interest and support.
Many thanks to Tony and Bob for the pictures.

THIS ANNUAL IS DEDICATED TO Mr. Murry C. Flynn

Thank God it's over.
Now for the long drive home —

WHO WAS THAT MASKED MAN?

He's the man on the white horse
With his faithful Indian companion
Who used to be a Texas Ranger
But was the last man left
And vowed to fight
For Law and Order
Defending women and children
In the afternoons
For one generation
And Saturday morning for another.

He was the inspiration
To do right
Think right
And walk right.
A superhero
Leading me on seductively
Into the belief
That I was Superperson.

Lone Ranger
I hate you
For leading me
To such a downfall.

The largest amount of cash ever found and returned to its owners was $340,000 in unmarked $10 and $20 bills found in a street in Los Angeles by Douglas William Johnston in March, 1961. He reviewed many letters, of which 25 percent suggested that he was insane.

"More hugging and kissing by boys and girls and young men and maids in the streets at night and parks by day! And no chaffing them by anybody. Mar. 23 - I can tell that the weather is above freezing again. I saw Bill Hedings in his shorts today.

One other important morsel of knowledge that I have received from my liberal arts education is that I have become a good conversationalist. A very important thing and quite useful, too. I just know I'll be an instant success at parties and banquets and such.

In the local movie theatre, you can buy mint-flavored lozenges with the words: "Will you marry me one day?" "Do you love me?" written on them together with the replies: "This evening," "A lot," etc. You pass them to the girl next to you, who replies the same way. Lives become linked together by an exchange of mint lozenges.

Postlude

To often we have come to think of the intelligent person as being one with fine, even outstanding, academic achievements and an inquiring mind that is never satisfied with knowledge which is a mere window dressing. My answer to such a description: BULL. Nothing could be further from the truth.

A truly intelligent person, Good Housekeeping Seal and all, is more than this. Intelligence only comes from a bond between mind and spirit. A spirit of love and concern for the improvement of mankind. Mind and spirit are joined with only one purpose in mind; to meet the needs of others. Only a person with this perspective and loving character can be labeled an "intelligent" person.

Let's attempt to get good grades and continue to develope an inquisitive mind. But the most important thing is to use it to better mankind, not merely to better ourselves. For if we shirk this all-important responsibility, the rest becomes garbage.
